Few details released in Arlington deaths

Shocking discovery. Investigators are not pursuing a suspect after finding four dead bodies inside a home.

Questions lingered Monday night after the bodies of a married couple and their twin, infant boys were discovered inside an Arlington home.

Law enforcement officials declined to release details on the deaths, saying they were in the early stages of the investigation; however, authorities said they were not pursuing a suspect.

The victims were identified as Scott Jones, 43, Mei Kum Jones, 43, both of Arlington, and their sons Colt and Cameron, who would have had their first birthday on Nov. 26, according to a press release from Middlesex District Attorney Marian Ryan's Office.

Speaking to the media at a 4 p.m. press conference, Ryan declined to say whether the incident was being handled as a murder-suicide. There were reports that the victims were slashed; however, Ryan refused to comment on what kind of weapon, if any, was used.

"The manner and means of death will be determined by the medical examiner. ... We're not looking for anyone at this point," she said. "This is obviously a very troubling, very tragic situation."

The multi-family house, located at 45 Newland Road, was blocked off and surrounded by law enforcement officials by 1 p.m., shortly after the family's babysitter called police to request a well-being check. The babysitter had trouble gaining entry to the home, according to Ryan. An officer who arrived at the home discovered the bodies.

During the media briefing, Arlington Police Chief Frederick Ryan attempted to ease local concerns raised by the lack of information.

"It is important for you to understand that there is no risk to public safety at this time," Ryan said. "We are quite certain that the community is safe and people can go about their business."

Eager for answers, a crowd of media waited for hours outside the residence as detectives, wearing white cloth booties on their feet, worked the scene.

The road was closed off, and helicopters hovered above, drawing a cluster of distraught onlookers.

Neighbor Joe Hersey told reporters near the home, "It's shocking. It's a very quiet neighborhood."

"I'm heartsick for the kids. It's heartbreaking," said Newland Road resident Amy Iannelli.

Poll finds people want casinos, just not near them

A new poll shows that most Massachusetts residents want casinos in the state, but not in their own communities.

The poll released Monday by the Western New England University Polling Institute found that 61 percent of adults support casinos in the state, but that 55 percent said they would oppose having one in their community.

Enacted in 2011, the state's expanded gambling law allows for the licensing of up to three resort-style casinos in Massachusetts and one slots parlor. The survey polled 517 adults earlier this month. The margin of error is 4.3 percent. METRO

Keepin' it classy. Will Ferrell to visit Emerson College as Ron Burgundy

You stay classy, Emerson.

The Boston liberal arts school will host a daylong visit by "Anchorman 2" star Will Ferrell next month when Emerson College renames the School of Communication after his character Ron Burgundy for the day.

Emerson said in a news release Monday that Ferrell will share Burgundy's "path to journalism greatness" with students.

"I had to pinch myself really hard when I learned that Emerson College was naming its School of Communication for me. It's kind of a big deal," said Burgundy in a tongue-in-cheek statement from Emerson. "I can't wait to inspire students with my story of how I got to the top … the very top. I'm not going to sugarcoat it. It's a lot of work, especially if you don't have good hair."

There will also be a morning news conference, an official naming ceremony that will be streamed online and an evening screening of "Anchorman 2: The Legend Continues" that Ferrell will introduce.

"A visit from Ron Burgundy is a chance to engage with someone who understands the power of media, as well as hair spray, first-hand," said Emerson College President Lee Pelton.

"Anchorman 2" comes out Dec. 20, meaning those in attendance at Ferrell's Emerson visit Dec. 4 will get a sneak preview of the film.

"Naming our school in his honor — for one entire day — compels us to honor the Ron Burgundy that's inside all of us … to live out our dreams, in full color and matching polyester," said Interim Dean of the School of Communication Phillip Glenn.

MICHAEL NAUGHTON

Kind of a big deal

For those who will not be able to attend the event, because Ferrell is kind of a big deal, they can pick up Burgundy's autobiography.

- Out today, the book "Let Me Off at the Top! My Classy Life and Other Musings" is described as a memoir and is selling with a list price of $22 on Amazon.

West to Harvard students: Design can save the world

Professor Yeezus. The opinionated rapper thanked the Ivy League design students for not being "lazy about creation."

Kanye West / FILMMAGIC

Before hitting the stage at the TD Garden Sunday, rapper and fashion aficionado Kanye West stopped by the Harvard Graduate School of Design to preach about the power of design and hand out free concert tickets.

West made his fashion fervor known to a few hundred students at the school, saying, "I just wanted to tell you guys: I really do believe that the world can be saved through design, and everything needs to actually be 'architected.'"

He went on to say he believed that "utopia is actually possible — but we're led by the least noble, the least dignified, the least tasteful, the dumbest and the most political. So in no way am I a politician; I'm usually at my best politically incorrect and very direct."

The visit came as a surprise to design students, according to Archinect.com, which offered a full transcript and video of West's brief remarks, as well as photos.

West's fiancee, Kim Kardashian, was also there, according to her Instagram account.

"My baby speaking at the Harvard Graduate School of Design," Kardashian wrote along with a photo of West surrounded by students.

Pitchfork reported that West was joined by Virgil Abloh, the creative director of West's art agency DONDA. Abloh told the website that the lecture was part of the "DONDA design lecture series."

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the tenth installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 12: Temp witnesses

the class divide firsthand

Had there not been stab wounds and vomit everywhere, the hospital lineup could have been fun in a tailgate party kind of way. Our surprise neighbor was Darren, the vet I'd given 20 bucks to after lunch. He was holding a T-shirt up to a wound on his forearm.

"What happened?"

"I got into a fight with a raccoon over half a bucket of KFC I found beside the check-cashing mart."

"Who won?"

"He did."

"Here, have a stick of gum." I am nothing if not fresh.

Danimal was being a downer. "How hard can it be to get some painkillers?"

"Dan, there are many people here in far worse shape than you. Keep it down."

Darren advised, "If you're looking to score painkillers, man, don't overplay it."

"But I'm in genuine pain."

"Sure, sure. Half the people in this lineup are here just to score some Oxy, but if you overdo it, they'll just tell you to scram."

Dan is practical. "What do I need to know?"

"Tell them your pain is about 8 on a scale of 1 to 10. It hurts, but you've felt worse. And don't scream or make moaning sounds. It irritates them and they're relieved when they don't have to watch someone aiming for an Oscar."

"Good to know."

"And now we stand and wait."

And wait we did. About two hours in Dan asked, "Shannon, have you been here before?"

"No. But I did break my arm roller-blading in Boston four years ago — go Red Sox! Cost me $19,000, and I'll be in debt until I'm 40. It's why I can't do what I really want to do in life. But I do have a Saint Eustace loyalty card you can borrow if you want."

"Was the emergency area as crowded as this four years ago?"

"Worse. There was a full moon that night."

Finally, it was our turn. Once we hit the front, Dan took a step and something inside him went sideways — he bellowed like a pirate, scaring even me.

"Sir!" said the intake nurse, "This is a hospital. I'll politely ask you to lower your voice."

"My stomach — God, it's like a tractor's driving over it."

"You're in a great deal of pain, are you?"

"Yes. Some idiot slugged me in the sternum."

"Where did this happen?"

"In a bar."

It didn't take a genius to see Dan was making a bad impression.

"How would you describe your pain, sir?"

"About 8 on a scale of 1 to 10."

The nurse buzzed a security guard. "You're the 10th person tonight to describe your pain that exact same way. I'm afraid I can't help you in your quest for pills, sir. Next!"

Out on the street, Darren commiserated. "Sorry dude. Take two of mine."

Dan grabbed them and chewed them like Mentos. Then he collapsed.

Which Taylor Swift ex is driven crazy by her songs?

It's pretty common knowledge that Taylor Swift's syrupy love songs and scorching breakup anthems are about her real, and often famous, boyfriends — such common knowledge, in fact, that playing "guess the ex" for each new Swift single is a beloved pastime for all upstanding Americans.

But what do the exes in question think about having their romances immortalized in song? At least one is cool with it and at least one is, well, not.

"I heard from the guy that most of 'Red' is about," Taylor Swift told New York Magazine. "He was like, 'I just listened to the album, and that was a really bittersweet experience for me. It was like going through a photo album.' That was nice. Nicer than, like, the ranting, crazy emails I got from this one dude. It's a lot more mature way of looking at a love that was wonderful until it was terrible, and both people got hurt from it — but one of those people happened to be a songwriter."

And it's time to play our favorite game! Who's the mature ex and who's the crazy ex? Jake Gyllenhaal seems like he'd be a grown-up about things, and much of Swift's album "Red" is rumored to be about him. As for the mad emailer, I'd say that sounds like John Mayer's style, but in that case, both parties would be songwriters, not just one. Unless "one of those people happened to be a songwriter" is a subtle dig at Mayer's musical chops? Man, I love this game! MELINDA TAUB

Cannon impostor steals jewelry

To be a jewel thief, all you need to do is pretend you are Nick Cannon. Say what?

An unidentified man has reportedly made off with thousands of dollars in stolen jewels just by dropping Nick Cannon's name, according to TMZ. The thief, who called himself "Michael," called retailer Fred Segal claiming that Cannon needed some jewels for his wife, Mariah Carey, and asked that they be delivered to the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood. A woman from the store obliged, handing the bounty off to a man who appeared to be a security guard who said he would return with cash for the jewels. And because we are all smarter than that sales clerk, we know how this story ends — "Michael" never came back.

ANDREW ECCLES, BRAVO

ASA SOLTAN RAHMATI

The "Shahs of Sunset" star tries to stay above all the drama — but it isn't always easy.

'SPIRITUAL GANGSTER'

Asa Soltan Rahmati is a busy woman. Her reality show, Bravo's "Shahs of Sunset," just returned for a third season, but filming the drama-filled show isn't the only thing the self-proclaimed "Persian Princess" has been up to. Since we last saw her, Rahmati has launched a boutique alkaline water company, Diamond Water, and created a collection of artwork. Sure, Rahmati has her fair share of haters — including some of the fellow "Shahs" she calls friends — but, if you ask her, that doesn't stop her from getting what she wants.

Have the other "Shahs" been supportive of your new ventures?
No, there was definitely some hater-ation, and some naysayers talking s—. But you know what? I'm a survivor and everything I have, I have worked hard for. Diamond Water is my dream — nobody else has to believe in it except for me — so I don't care what other people say.

Where do you find inspiration for your art?
Art has always been a vehicle of therapy for myself. I'm able to process the pain I went through living as a refugee in an immigrant ghetto in Germany. A lot of my work has to do with identity and living between cultures. Whether it's with my music or with my visual art, there always seems to be some sort of Eastern/Western gangster flair to it. It's always been art, life and love, all melted together for me.

You're a self-proclaimed "Persian Pop Priestess." What's that about?
I learned at a young age that we have so much that makes us who we are. The main things are love and humanity, but mainly love. I kind of became a spiritual gangster really early on. The Priestess is really a spiritual gangster. Love by all means necessary. Not in that weird hippie way, but in a true, primal way.

You and GG made amends in the first episode. Do you think her apology was genuine?
I think that last season was really hard for her. I think that she learned consequences. People don't think she has changed, but she and I are in a really good place and I see her like a little sister. I'm really big on giving people second chances and forgiving people when they truly know what went down.

The rift between Lilly and MJ seems to be messing with the group's dynamic.
MJ is my girl. In our culture, depending on how tight you are, it's not OK to invite someone to a party and then just not allow them to come. Lilly always feels the need to point out that she has class. The right thing to do would have been to let her come.

"Shahs of Sunset" airs Tuesdays at 10 p.m. on Bravo.

ALEX KHATCHADOURIAN

Homecoming

What's one moment this season that meant a lot to you?
[My art project] was a personal piece for me and propelled me to organize a family reunion in Turkey with my family that's still in Iran. I haven't been able to see them for 30 years because of my refugee status and not being allowed to go back.

3 Roly-poly

Still lugging luggage? A wheelie is best for whizzing from terminal to terminal. Sturdy and cheap, this Rio two-piece has you covered. It has big outside pockets for easy access to important documents, and there are handy handles on the side and underside for grabbing from the overhead bin. Unpacked, it's lightweight and, at under $40, damage or loss isn't as heart-stopping as losing a Louis Vuitton. $37.69, www.wayfair.com

4 Poop in peace

It's not the most glamorous aspect of travel, but due to hours spent sitting, the change in time zones and not getting enough liquids, travelers are prone to uncomfortable constipation. Add holiday stuffing and missing one's own bathroom, and your trip is easily ruined. Good To Go is a four-day preventive regime containing bulking fiber (psyllium husk and chia seed), prune and apricot extracts, aloe vera, magnesium and senna to help you, you know, get going. It's designed to be used at the start of a trip to avoid intestinal blockage. While it's formulated for most people to tolerate, check with your doctor before taking it. $12.99, www.begoodtogo.com

5 Alien space mask or comfy pillow? You decide

You might look like an alien wearing this, but Hammacher Schlemmer's Power Nap Head Pillow becomes a personal haven during airport delays, or for long car, train or bus journeys. It's cleverly designed to block out noise and light to create your own private comfort zone, allowing you to grab some shut-eye. But again, fair warning: You will look crazy wearing it. $99.95, www.hammacher.com

Cook with your kids this fall

Family time. Chef Marcus Samuelsson shares tips on getting the whole family involved in the kitchen.

Chef Marcus Samuelsson has been cooking with kids quite a bit lately. The chef teamed up with Uncle Ben's to support Ben's Beginners Cooking Contest, giving families opportunities to win cash prizes. Here, he shares his tips with Metro on how to cook with your kids — stress free!

1 Start early. It's the first step to helping children understand nutrition and to get them thinking about what they're eating.

2 Get those hands dirty. Cooking isn't about standing on the sidelines. Try cooking dishes your kids are familiar with together that also have room for a little creativity, such as tacos.

Samuelsson is working to get more kids in the kitchen. / COURTESY OF UNCLE BEN'S

It offers the opportunity to explore different flavors and textures.

3 Let your kids take ownership. For younger kids, let them be in charge of getting the ingredients out of the refrigerator. If they're older, maybe they prepare a whole dish. Either way, your child will take pride in what he or she accomplishes in the kitchen.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Opportunity knocks, and the chance to put your skills to work for you will result in rewards. Cover up for any emotional mishap.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20. Don't feel obligated to pay for others' mistakes. Put more into your own work and take care of financial and contractual interests that will improve your position.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. Listen, but don't agree to do what everyone else wants. Make a required decision based on your emotional needs. Only you know what's best for you.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. You may face emotional interference if you share too many of your ideas and intentions with others. Be discreet and determined to follow through with your plans.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. You may feel the need to address issues that are bothering you, but be prepared to deal with disapproval. Someone will meddle in your affairs if you share too much information.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Do your research and base any decision regarding money, health or contractual issues on facts and figures. Someone with a vested interest is likely to use emotional blackmail.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. A challenge is best left alone. Minor mishaps or injury will occur if you aren't cautious. Realize your potential and stick to what you are capable of doing.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Leap into action. There is much you can accomplish if you put your mind to it. Getting involved in activities or events that promote your skills will lead to an unusual proposal.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Explore areas of interest. Don't feel you have to take care of someone else's concerns. Let your desires dictate what you do. A change will do you good.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Follow through with your plans, even if someone throws an emotional wrench into the mix. It's up to you to refuse to let anyone interfere with your happiness.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Check out different cultures and philosophies. You will get peace of mind knowing you are on the right track spiritually, educationally or emotionally.

Health care burden is a weighty issue

Re: 'Healthy weight isn't the same as good health' (Metro, Nov. 18) I agree with letter writer Ann Sandhorst that employees who are overweight should not be penalized. There are overweight people who are very healthy and have longevity. However, I disagree regarding penalizing people based on the number of health problems they have. It's hard enough for someone who is sick to recover or for someone with health problems to cope with them. Do we want employers to tell people, "We're sorry you have health problems but we're going to have to penalize you. The healthy, able people don't want to share your burden so you're on your own now."

TIM RIKER, VIA EMAIL

Poor taste in turn of phrase

Re: 'Pretty actors going dirty' (Metro, Nov. 18) In regards to Mr. Matt Prigge's review, I concur "poverty porn" is an awful term. This term establishes poverty as a joke that only "other" people are hindered by.

LURITHEN R. FRASER, VIA EMAIL

Give more time for teachers to teach

Maybe education reform in this country is the right move at the right time, but with the wrong thrust. I wonder what would happen if we took the tasks of creating, administering and correcting of tests away from the teachers, and gave those responsibilities to the administrators? That would leave more time for the teachers to ... teach! And the administrators would have something on their plate that they would be accountable for! OMG, how crazy is THAT?

Panthers edge Patriots

Cam Newton threw three touchdown passes in a Carolina win. / GETTY IMAGES

NFL. The Patriots held a fourth-quarter lead but couldn't close things out, losing to Carolina, 24-20.

Here are three things we learned in the Patriots' 24-20 loss to the Panthers Monday night in North Carolina:

1 Unable to close
On third-and-7 from the Patriots' 36-yard line, Devin McCourty was flagged for holding on tight end Greg Olsen, which set up a first down for Cam Newton and crew with under two minutes to play. Newton took advantage, hitting Ted Ginn for a 25-yard TD that left the Patriots with just 59 seconds to overcome a four-point deficit. Tom Brady would drive the Patriots all the way down to the Carolina 18-yard line, but with no time remaining he was picked off in the end zone. It looked as though Rob Gronkowski was going to pick up a pass interference call on the final play in the back of the end zone but the referees picked up a thrown flag, ending the game.

2 Mixed bag in the third
Coming out of halftime Monday, there was no third quarter lull for the New England offense as the Pats orchestrated a beautiful, 82-yard touchdown drive in four minutes and 29 seconds that finished with a Gronkowski touchdown. The Pats' defense did not fare as well as Brady and the offense in the third, as they allowed Newton to scramble freely and lead the Panthers to an impressive drive of their own that climaxed with Newton finding Greg Olsen in the end zone.

3 Early mistakes hurt
The Patriots found themselves down, 10-3, at halftime thanks to mistakes on both sides of the ball. Panthers wide receiver Steve Smith clearly got under the skin of Aqib Talib early on. Talib, who broke up a third-down pass intended for Smith on the Panthers' first drive, was beaten on Carolina's second drive when Smith hauled in a 42-yard pass from Newton. Three plays later, Newton found Smith for five yards. Talib held onto Smith's ankle a tad too long after the whistle and following a scuffle in which Talib's helmet came off, the Pats cornerback was flagged for a 15-yard unnecessary roughness call. The Panthers would finish off the drive by scoring the game's first touchdown, a 9-yard reception by Brandon LaFell. The Pats looked ready to tie the game, 7-7, to start the second quarter but Stevan Ridley continued with his ball-control issues as he was stripped by Kawann Short at the Carolina 13-yard line.
